Hey CyberPals!

Okay, I think I have worked out the bugs in my newsletter script. urgggh...

It's tricky because there are limits to how much email you can send out in an hour before you're flagged as a spammer by many ISPs. Plus, HTML mail was a pain in the ass. We are going to go with plain email from now on.

It may be too soon to tell, but I think blogging may finally be a thing of the past. Yes, there will always be someone writing their thoughts on the web, but gosh isn't it tedious to read 1500 people writing "War & Peace" every day? I think the future is getting the news out in 144 characters or less:

Look for a major revamp of the font and design section real soon. Got lots of great news to share with you all!

SOAPBOX: RANTS AND RAVES...
You Either 'Get It'... or You Don't. (July 10th, 2011)- Life is a never ending river flow. Sometimes the course can become dangerously erratic; Sometimes it's filled with obstacles like rocks and fallen trees; Sometimes it reaches an 'end' with a really large drop, where it continues again.
